Kolkata and Goa, India

Music for peace

This resolutely non-commercial festival focuses on exchange and the forging of new musical friendships. Taking place over consecutive weekends in Kolkata and Goa respectively, morning workshops with artists make way for evening concerts from acclaimed Bengali musicians and international performers. To date, artists from 26 countries and 12 Indian states have visited the festival, with Cheikh Lo and Finland's Tuomper among the highlights for 2018.

SPOTLIGHT ON... Sur Jahan

Rontana Bhattacharya Founder and director

Does the year festival do three months

Music, love, peace

What is your festival's USP?

Celebrating cultural diversity and spreading the message of togetherness and love is the essence of Sur Jahan. While all individual concerts are meant to spread musical flows with love in their artists than each band. The festival also showcases local traditional folk performances, make workshops bring the day and provides free space for handicraft artists. The ticket fee is almost nil, it amounts to 0.01% people per day and in free. Music for all and music for peace is the mantra.

What makes a good programme?

Variety of music. The use of ethnic traditional musical instruments is attractive to us. Good vocals are also important. Dance is a plus. It adds colour to the festival.

What's your favourite festival moment?

Yet, what's gone from a decade, the best part.
