Journey of Surjahan 2011-20

Sur Jahan (earlier known as Sufi Sutra) is a World Peace Music Festival developed by banglanatak dot com, a 20 years old Kolkata-based social enterprise specializing in Culture and Development. "Music for All & Music for Peace" is the Mantra of this non-commercial festival which celebrates cultural diversity. Music teams from 32 countries and 10 states of India have participated since its inception in 2011. Each year 5-6 international bands participate in the festival, which has day-time cultural exchange workshops and evening concerts. Rural handicraft and traditional folk artists also participate in the festival, creating an ambience of a carnival. More than 10,000 persons attend the festival every day in Kolkata. It has been termed as a 'people's festival' by the media worldwide and has evolved as a head liner festival in both Kolkata and Goa.

MUSIC AND THE MASTER - Grand maestro Ustad Ali Khan inaugurates a Sufi Sutra concert at Mohar Kunj in Kolkata on Friday. Ujjay Singh

Our Correspondent

Ever heard of the whirling dervish? They are a very important part of Sufi culture. Sufism is a form of devotional music that is inspired by the work of such poets like Rumi, Hafiz, Bulleh Shah among others. There are many forms of Sufi music including ghazal, qawwali and even Sufi music to certain extent.

In its second consecutive year, Sufi Sutra, that will once again bring devotional music to Kolkata on a big scale at the lush green lawns of Mohar Kunj, is all set to make an impression on every Kolkata and every non-Kolkata in the city. Sufi Sutra plans to celebrate peace, universal love and brotherhood with the help of music. It also plans to create opportunities for international and multi-cultural exchanges.

At the press conference of Sufi Sutra that was held at Aqua, The Park, several local singers came over singing songs and leading an evening atmosphere of pure folk music and rustic beats. The four singers present included Saurabh Das on the dhol, Golam Fahir on the dholak, Akbar Fakir, Babu Fahir on the harmonium and Shayan Strander on the guitar.

After a couple of songs, Saurabh Das who has been playing the dhol ever since he was ten years old says that he doesn't end at playing the particular instrument. "I also play the tabla, the harmonium that is used in kirtan, the mauli and any other percussion instrument. They took away my passport because my work involved travelling a lot, I told them that I wouldn't run away anymore and that I always wanted to come back to my homeland, but they wouldn't listen to me. I always wanted to go abroad but I just have to remain satisfied with my life here I suppose," he says resignedly. However he picked up on finding out that there would be international artists at the gathering too.

The event that will be held between February 3-5, will see Ustad Ali Khan inaugurating the music festival and will teach how to live and let live through the Sufi music. The event will also see performers from Azerbaijan, Denmark, Egypt, Hungary, Morocco, Delhi, Kashmir and Bengal.
